

Schadt, with some Nigerian children

● By Funke Oduwole

Expressing His Love

*US-based Seekers
of Souls Ministries
embarks on a fact-finding mission to identify areas of assistance to Nigerians as it expands the frontiers of the gospel*

Bearing a message of hope and restoration, Mike Schadt, field director, Seekers of Souls, SOS Ministries, a pioneer church planting ministry, was not bothered by the horrible news of kidnappings and hostage taking of foreign nationals and the news of other terrible things being peddled by the international news media about Africa and Nigeria in particular, and recently headed for Lagos, Nigeria.

He set out on a mission to seek out the lost sheep, not just in Lagos but also in other parts of the country, east, west and even the north. Not basing his fact-finding work in Nigeria on preaching in formal church set up, he also went to the remote villages and towns where there are no established churches to preach the good news of the gospel to the villagers and share with them the love of God. He offers them the opportunity to be partakers of the salvation won for mankind through the shedding of the blood of sinless Jesus.

Armed with the words spoken by Apostle Paul in Roman 15:20, "It has always been my ambition to preach the gospel where Christ was not known so that I would not be building on someone else's foundation", which he said is the guiding light of the SOS Ministries. Schadt, with the assistance of some friends to guide him, made voyages to villages in Ogun State, and some rural communities in Lagos State, preaching the gospel fearlessly, expressing the love of Christ.

With headquarters in Clearwater, Florida, United States, US, the SOS Ministries which has a vision and mission to take care of the spiritual needs of the

